Keratin as a Protein Biopolymer Swati Sharma,Ashok Kumar,2018-11-23 This book provides information about the sources, structure, and properties of keratin as well as its applications. The extraction from different biomass sources (e.g. feathers, hairs, nails, horn, hoof, and claws) as well as the characterization methods of these extracted materials are explained. The development of bioproducts from keratins is challenging and limited since they are neither soluble in polar solvents nor in non-polar solvents. Therefore, the utilization of different microorganisms for the degradation of keratin is also discussed. The main aim of this book is to highlight the unique features of keratin and to update readers with the possible prospects to develop various value-added products from keratins. The book is highly interesting to researchers working in industry and academia on bioproducts, tissue engineering, biocomposites, biofilm, and biofibers.

Membrane Bioreactors for Wastewater Treatment Thomas Stephenson,K. Brindle,Simon Judd,Bruce Jefferson,2000-05-31 The book covers the subject of membrane bioreactors (MBR) for wastewater treatment, dealing with municipal as well as industrial wastewaters. The book details the 3 types of MBR available and discusses the science behind the technology, their design features, operation, applications, advantages, limitations, performance, current research activities and cost. As the demand for wastewater treatment, recycling and re-use technologies increases, it is envisaged that the membrane separation bioreactor will corner the market. A Comprehensive Guide to Solar Energy Systems Trevor Letcher,Vasilis M. Fthenakis,2018-05-17 A Comprehensive Guide to Solar Energy Systems: With Special Focus on Photovoltaic Systems, the most advanced and research focused text on all aspects of solar energy engineering, is a must have edition on the present state of solar technology, integration and worldwide distribution. In addition, the book provides a high-level assessment of the growth trends in photovoltaics and how investment, planning and economic infrastructure can support those innovations. Each chapter includes a research overview with a detailed analysis and new case studies that look at how recent research developments can be applied. Written by some of the most forward-thinking professionals, this book is an invaluable reference for engineers. - Contains analysis of the latest high-level research and explores real world application potential in relation to developments - Uses system international (SI) units and imperial units throughout to appeal to global engineers - Offers measurable data written by a world expert in the field on the latest developments in this fast moving and vital subject

Exploring the Last Continent Daniela Liggett, Bryan Storey, Yvonne Cook, Veronika Meduna, 2015-09-29 This multi-disciplinary book will cater to students and those who want to have a more critical look behind the scenes of Antarctic science. This book will take a systems approach to providing insights into Antarctic ecosystems and the geophysical environment. Further, the book will link these insights to a discussion of current issues, such as climate change, bio prospecting, environmental management and Antarctic politics. It will be written and edited by experienced Antarctic researchers and scientists from a wide range of disciplines. Academic references will be included for those who wish to delve deeper into the topics discussed in the book.

Contaminants in Agriculture M. Naeem, Abid A. Ansari, Sarvajeet Singh Gill, 2020 This comprehensive volume covers recent studies into agricultural problems caused by soil and water contamination. Considering the importance of agricultural crops to human health, the editors have focused on chapters detailing the negative impact of heavy metals, excessive chemical fertilizer use, nutrients, pesticides, herbicides, insecticides, agricultural wastes and toxic pollutants, among others, on agricultural soil and crops. In addition, the chapters offer solutions to these negative impacts through various scientific approaches, including using biotechnology, nanotechnology, nutrient management strategies, biofertilizers, as well as potent PGRs and elicitors. This book serves as a key source of information on scientific and engineered approaches and challenges for the bioremediation of agricultural contamination worldwide. This book should be helpful for research students, teachers, agriculturalists, agronomists, botanists, and plant growers, as well as in the fields of agriculture, agronomy, plant science, plant biology, and biotechnology, among others. It serves as an excellent reference on the current research and future directions of contaminants in agriculture from laboratory research to field application.

AS 3740-1994 'Waterproofing of Wet Areas Within Residential Buildings' B. L. Schafer, CSIRO. Division of Building, Construction and Engineering, 1995 The first question that must be answered is why a new standard, especially as the one it replaces was only four years old when BD/38 first convened to revise AS 3740-1989. There were several reasons, as follows: (a) there were no real deemed-to-comply specifications in AS 3740-1989; (b) adoption of the Building Code of Australia (BCA) by the various states and territories had altered the floor waste requirements for residential construction; (c) new floor wastes which have potential to drain at the waterproofing level had become available; (d) hobless shower installations need special attention which was not fully considered in the original standard; (e) new, related Australian Standards needed to be referenced; and (f) there were a few deficiencies in the existing standard. In considering these aspects, there were significant changes made to the 1994 issue of AS 3740 which are not obvious at a superficial glance. This paper will highlight where these changes have been made and the background to the changes.
