The Economics of Deforestation in the Amazon João S. Campari,2005-01-01 This provocative new book presents the results of twenty years of research on deforestation in the Amazon. By carefully observing the changing character of human settlements and their association with deforestation over such a prolonged period, the author is able to reject much of the 'perceived wisdom'.

Gobernanza forestal y REDD+: Desafíos para las políticas y mercados en América Latina Elena Petkova,Anne Larson,Pablo Pacheco,2011-11-25 Los bosques y su gobernanza han sido objeto de creciente atención en los últimos años. Un factor que ha estimulado este interés es el reconocimiento del hecho que la deforestación contribuye de forma importante a las emisiones de gases de efecto invernadero. Son múltiples los factores que afectan la conservación, manejo y aprovechamiento sostenible de los bosques, o influyen sobre las presiones que existen sobre las tierras forestales, los que usualmente están vinculados con condiciones más generales de gobernanza que afecta a los bosques. En la actualidad, el mayor desafío para la investigación sobre la gobernanza forestal es analizar cómo se han gobernado diversos valores y usos forestales, extraer lecciones sobre las causas de éxito y fracaso, e identificar futuras opciones y respuestas de políticas para un cambio transformador si los bosques y REDD+ han de lograr su potencial esperado. Los artículos de esta edición presentan diferentes perspectivas de la gobernanza forestal en América Latina vinculados con una amplia gama de temas que se encuentran en la intersección entre REDD+ y la gobernanza forestal, con implicaciones para la reforma de políticas y el uso de los recursos forestales, la transformación de los paisajes forestales, los derechos y medios de vida de la población, y la distribución de bienes y servicios forestales. Aunque los artículos que aquí se incluyen no responden a las múltiples preguntas que han surgido sobre gobernanza y REDD+, ellos contribuyen a ampliar nuestro conocimiento y proporcionan una importante perspectiva regional.

Global Environmental Change and Land Use Han Haarman,A. Verhagen,C.A. Rovers,2013-03-14 The interaction between environmental change and human activities is complex, requiring the concepts and tools of a number of disciplines for its effective analysis. Land-use and land-cover change has only recently become a topic susceptible to scientific research, as these concepts and tools have been developed and made available. Rooted in a broad community concerned with global change, systematic research has begun into land-use systems at different scales and interactions, and their links with global cycles of water, nitrogen and carbon are being explored. Partly based on research initiated by the Dutch National Research Programme on Global Air Pollution and Climate Change (NRP), this book touches upon various land-use and land-cover issues in relation to global environmental change. In addition to the biogeochemical cycles, land as a carrier for functions of economic activities, food and fibre production and energy production via biomass are discussed. Crucial in studying land use is human behaviour and man-environment interaction at different scales. Land-use and land-cover change is an important contributor of greenhouse gases as these activities directly interfere with the carbon, nitrogen and water cycles. These cycles are connected through numerous feedback loops. The interface of land-use and climate is essentially determined by the interaction of man and the environment. Man uses land primarily to produce food; a relatively small area is needed for urban development.

Estudio de los efectos del programa de pago por servicios ambientales. María Perevochtchikova,2017-01-23 En este libro se presentan los resultados del proyecto de investigación científica sobre la evaluación de los efectos socioeconómicos y ambientales del programa federal Pago por Servicios Ambientales Hidrológicos (PSAH), implementado en México por la Comisión Nacional Forestal desde 2003. El caso de estudio trata de la comunidad de San Miguel y Santo Tomás Ajusco, ubicada en el suelo de Conservación de la Ciudad de México.

Comparación de métodos de evaluación de efectividad de iniciativas subnacionales REDD+ Bos, A.B.,Duchelle, A.E.,Angelsen, A.,Avitabile, V.,de Sy, V.,Herold, M.,Joseph, S.,de Sassi, C.,Sills, E.O.,Sunderlin, W.D.,Wunder, S.,2017-10-24 El papel central de los bosques en la mitigación del cambio climático, como se ha reconocido en el Acuerdo de París, acrecienta la importancia de desarrollar y probar métodos de monitoreo y evaluación de la efectividad de REDD+ en cuanto al carbono. Durante la última década han surgido cientos de iniciativas subnacionales REDD+, lo que representa una oportunidad para probar y comparar diferentes enfoques para la cuantificación de sus impactos en las emisiones de carbono. Este estudio (1) desarrolla un método de evaluación Antes-DespuésControl-Intervención (BACI por sus siglas en inglés) para evaluar la efectividad de estas iniciativas REDD+; (2) compara los estudios a escalas meso y micro (iniciativa y poblado, respectivamente); y (3) compara el BACI con resultados simples del tipo Antes y Después (BA por sus siglas en inglés).

Nuestro estudio abarca 23 iniciativas subnacionales REDD+ en Brasil, Perú, Camerún, Tanzania, Indonesia y Vietnam. Empleamos la pérdida de cobertura forestal anual como una medida de la deforestación. Agrupamos los datos en dos periodos (antes y después del inicio de cada iniciativa). El análisis realizado empleando áreas de control (control-intervención) sugiere un mejor desempeño de REDD+, aunque el efecto es más pronunciado en el micronivel en comparación con el mesonivel. Sin embargo, el método de evaluación BACI requiere más datos que el método BA y está sujeto a posibles sesgos en el periodo antes. La selección de las áreas de control apropiadas es crucial, pero no es un proceso sencillo en ninguna de las escalas. Los valores absolutos de deforestación bajos y los años pico influyen tanto en nuestros resultados del método BA como en los del método BACI. En principio, el método BACI es superior, dado su potencial para controlar efectivamente factores de confusión. Concluimos que cuanto más local sea la escala de la evaluación del desempeño, más relevante es el uso del enfoque BACI. Por varias razones, encontramos hasta ahora un impacto mínimo general de REDD+ en la reducción de la deforestación en el terreno. Es importante incorporar los resultados de micro- y mesonivel en los sistemas nacionales de reporte, ya que el impacto general de REDD+ depende de las decisiones de uso de la tierra en la práctica.

Sustainable Management of Pinus Radiata Plantations Donald J. Mead, 2013 Pinus radiata (radiata pine) is a versatile, fast-growing, medium-density softwood, suitable for a wide range of end-uses. Its silviculture is highly developed, and is built on a firm foundation of over a century of research, observation and practice. Radiata pine is often considered a model for growers of other plantation species. This book explores current knowledge of, and experience with radiata pine forest plantation management and examines its long-term sustainability. Radiata pine management needs to integrate the biological aspects of tree-growing, with socio-economics, management objectives, practical considerations and other constraints and opportunities. Although stands of radiata pine may appear to be simple, they are actually quite complex ecosystems because they contain large, long-lived trees that change dramatically over time and interact in changing ways with the environment and with other organisms. The focus of this book is on the principles and practices of growing radiata pine sustainably. It also looks ahead to emerging challenges facing radiata pine plantation management, such as the effects of climate change, new diseases and other threats, and meeting changing product needs and societal demands.--Page 4 of cover.

Environmental Exodus Norman Myers, Jennifer Kent, 1995 An exciting pictorial atlas of past civilizations -- exploring the history of the ancient world from the Sumerians in 3500 BC to the Incas in AD 1500. Where did Alexander the Great fight the war elephants of King Poros? Who were the Assyrians and where did they live? How far did the Roman Empire stretch? Where did the Maya build their temples and palaces? The Atlas of Ancient Worlds reveals all this information, and much more. This new pictorial atlas looks at life in the ancient world -- from the great cultures of Greece, Rome, and the Middle east to the glittering cities of India, China, and the ancient Americas. Each civilization is illustrated with a beautiful full-color map featuring realistic scenes of how people lived and what crops they grew, their religious rituals and battle sites, as well as the trade routes that helped spread ideas and religions from one region to another. Lively text traces the progress and discoveries of each civilization and provides dramatic detail about the power struggles of ambitious rulers. Accurate reconstructions show the extraordinary architectural skill behind great structures, including the Parthenon in Greece the Great Wall of China, and the Aztec city of Tenochtitlan. To complete the picture, stunning color photographs display the jewelry, tools, and weapons, architectural remains, and early writings that have helped experts piece together the story of the past. Packed with fascinating information and outstanding artwork, The Atlas of Ancient Worlds takes the reader on an exciting journey back in time.

Linkages in the Landscape Andrew F. Bennett,2003 The loss and fragmentation of natural habitats is one of the major issues in wildlife management and conservation. Habitat corridors are sometimes proposed as an important element within a conservation strategy. Examples are given of corridors both as pathways and as habitats in their own right. Includes detailed reviews of principles relevant to the design and management of corridors, their place in regional approaches to conservation planning, and recommendations for research and management.

Fresh Tracks in the Forest: Assessing Incipient Payments for Environmental Services Initiatives in Bolivia Nina Robertson,Sven Wunder,2005-01-01 Payments for Environmental Services (PES) are being considered worldwide with great interest and expectation. Proposals to create agreements in which beneficiaries of environmental services pay landowners directly for the provision or protection of these services are innovative and promising. But what real PES experiences are actually out there? This work assesses a range of PES or PES-type experiences in one country, Bolivia, in the fields of carbon sequestration, protection of watershed services, biodiversity and aesthetic landscape values. The report concludes that while none of the generally young initiatives adhere fully to the principle of PES as developed in the theoretical literature, many experiment with some of the relevant PES mechanisms. Protection of watersheds and landscape values are the most common types, though the implementing intermediaries often have underlying biodiversity-protection goals. Main obstacles to PES implementation include ideological resistance against the PES concept, the difficulty of building trust between buyers and sellers, and limited willingness to pay on behalf of service users. During their relatively short lifetime, basically all initiatives had been successful in making service sellers (PES recipients) better off in economic terms, while the effectiveness in achieving environmental objectives and securing positive social impacts so far remained more variable. In some cases, redesigning these initiatives to bring them closer to the full PES principles could also enable them to more effectively achieve positive environmental and livelihood outcomes.

Environment and Development Stavros G. Pouloupoulos,Vassilis J. Inglezakis,2016-05-23 Environment and Development: Basic Principles, Human Activities, and Environmental Implications focuses on the adverse impact that human activities, developments, and economic growth have on both natural and inhabited environments. The book presents the associated problems, along with solutions that can be used to achieve a harmonic, sustainable development that provides for the co-existence of man and natural life. Chapters provide detailed information on a range of environments including: atmospheric, aquatic, soil, natural, urban, energy, and extraterrestrial, as well as the relationship between the environment and development. In addition, this comprehensive book presents the latest research findings and trends in global environmental policy for each issue. - Offers a discussion of the extraterrestrial environment and waste in earth orbit as one of the distinctive topics of the book - Addresses global environmental policy issues and policies - Presents tabulated data to support the analysis and explain the issues presented - Includes case studies covering many topics of current interest - Analyzes environmental issues and proposes solutions grounded in recent research findings - Discusses the various interpretations of the development concept as well as alternative pathways to sustainable development
